

Opening

This article exposes a social and political engineering mechanism that was used in Canaan in the Old Testament, was used by the Knights of Malta to establish a certain infamous political group in Germany whose name I refuse to utter, was used in the United States among other places in our era, and is just starting to be used in Asia now.

The Canaanite cult

Back in Canaan it took the form of a cult to a certain idol. I'll refrain from uttering the name of this idol due to its symbolism [to remain a trustworthy educator I must keep my own position on the matter clear, and it's become a group identifier symbol], but it's named in Leviticus 18:21. The name of this idol translates to 'lord', 'ruler', 'master', or 'sovereign', and the cult existed as a social and political engineering mechanism to obtain the fealty of peoples, take away their freedom and transfer authority to the leaders of this cult. Here is how they did it.

The cult's members would throw massive, outlandishly revelrous parties either in remote areas out of town or privately-held locations in town. Potential recruits would be accompanied to these by existing members, and would be provided all manner of entertainment and available sex. Much of this was same-gender sex, which was usually vilified within their own communities. If these potential recruits didn't already have a taste for it, they soon acquired it. And this cult was primarily their only way to fulfill that desire, so acceptance into the cult suddenly became very important to these new recruits. If they weren't accepted, they wouldn't keep receiving the locations of these parties.

If that wasn't enough, the threat of their exposure by the cult's members - and the resulting condemnation they'd receive from their own villagers - was more than enough to gain their loyalty.

As newly-recruited cult members who'd like to remain on this cult's good side, they found that they had to enact the will of this cult in their communities. This included recruiting new members, supporting existing members as they attained prominent social and political positions [and such collusion would have been completely opaque to non-members of course, since they were unaware of who was supporting whom and why], and enacting social and political policies that were favorable to the cult's agenda. This last of course included the open vilification of homosexuality, which enabled the cult to keep a virtual monopoly on same-gender dalliances and relationship opportunities.

As the cult persisted, it developed a system of code and symbolism which allowed its longtime members to co-ordinate on a covert basis, even in a public place filled with plenty of non-member villagers. A shared context of imagery and symbolism meant that certain words and often even body-language gestures would be interpreted by members in a way that non-members wouldn't have the insight to get. Result: You now had a covert espionage effort forming and coordinating its efforts to terraform the original society, political system, and social mores in ways which served the agenda of the cult's leaders. With control of something like that - and provided nobody was honest enough to expose the scheme - anyone could have the means to put themselves into positions of social or political authority. It was essentially organized crime presenting as religion, and usurping sociopolitical rulership through the mechanisms of espionage.

Evidence in the Old Testament

Whatever your take on the Bible, let's examine Leviticus 18 for a moment. Much of it is proscriptions against various kinds of sexual acts, up until verse 20. In verse 21 it specifically prohibits allowing any offspring to be given to this specific idol [and then prohibits blasphemy]. Due to the description used, it's more likely to refer not to recruitment but of the ritual child sacrifice this cult occasionally demanded of its members. As the cult started gaining influence in an area, it would require a sort of symbolic, ritual 'consecration to the idol', much as we would baptize children today. But as the cult began taking on more clout, the severity of its demands would increase until infants were literally 'given to the idol'.

The very next verse is translated in modern Bibles as, 'Thou shalt not lie with mankind, as with womankind: it is abomination.' The word translated 'an abomination' is actually the Hebrew word 'to'ebah', and can refer to the breaking of either a moral or ritual law. When 'to'ebah' refers to the breaking of a ritual law it's better translated 'ritually improper,' or 'involves foreign religious cult practice.' Unless we're familiar with the practices of this Old Testament Cana'anite idol cult, that latter definition isn't going to make the slightest bit of sense to us. Now that we are, it makes complete sense - especially coming as it does immediately after a proscription naming this specific cult.

While we're on the subject, there appear to be other areas where the Bible has been mistranslated to forbid homosexuality, when the Greek words actually used there have a less well-understood meaning. They could indeed refer to 'male temple whores of an idolatrous cult', and this would make more sense given both the context of the passages and the history I've just detailed. If so, either ignorance of the subject has prevailed or there's been a coordinated effort to misinterpret these passages in a way which culturally vilifies homosexuality. The latter would of course enormously benefit a cult which uses downlow homosexuality as a major recruitment mechanism.

Germany

Fast forward now to WWII Germany. A foreign dictator whose methods involve authoritarianism and strict control somehow manages to establish a major power base and usurps political control with the consent of huge swaths of the public. We're often told of the economic assurances he gave to the German public, but was that all that was used to gain prevalent approval and support? The symbolism used by his party was that of the Vatican's 'Knights of Malta', and was carefully selected because it was also symbolism used by the Babylonian Gnostics of which the Vatican is a mere franchise. But his support base primarily consisted of adolescent youths and young men. Culturally, his regime hypermasculinized the men and gender roles were overwhelmingly reinforced. Was this mere coincidence?

It was not. The only reason I know this is through personal familiarity with the aftereffects in the modern U.S.. Downlow covert homosexuality, overt vilification of homosexuality from the same people, and their use of a system of covert words and body-language symbolism, was something I've encountered personally and managed to track back to the political effort in Germany. It's the very same covert 'language' being used, and on finding that this was so I was able to track it all the way back to that Old Testament Cana'anite cult as well.

Presently of course it's being shut down, packed up and outmoded in the U.S., as the 'Knights of Malta' end their public recruitment effort now that they've established themselves in positions of authority and control once again. The recruitment effort is no longer needed here, the various franchise organizations are covertly demanding of 'their' personnel that they no longer indulge in the sex, drugs and insider trading that had been used as social engineering mechanisms [they can persist purely on blackmail now using evidence of indulgences long since past; it's much cheaper], and the franchises are obediently giving up their seeming identities to the principal groups which run them. The general public of course are being directed at this time to become quite concerned about dictators and fascist rulers, which is not only no longer a going concern but also neatly assists the globalists with turning the public against anyone among this lot which are still indulging in the vices that had once been used to recruit personnel, just as the globalists seek to get rid of anyone who isn't keeping to their new standards, in an effort to deflect the blame and suspicion from their current efforts. The idea is to always have the general public catching on to things right as the globalists are ready to shut them down anyway.

Asia

In Asia, the situation is much different. The dynastic leaders of Japan and China 'sold out' to the globalists as late as the Nixon era, and so they're rapidly working there to establish a public power base. As such, they're currently going through their recruitment phase with all the sex, drugs, insider trading and so on that are used to attract attention and gain public support. Add in as well a sort of media sycophancy towards nearly all of the Asian countries - and many of their companies - at the expense of already-complicit European and Asian countries to ensure Asia's continued complicity in establishing the so-called 'New World Order'.

The social and political engineering mechanisms appear to remain fundamentally the same throughout the ages, with only minor distinctions. The public support base grows because at a private, individual level people are induced to 'sell out' their morals due to societal pressures. They're left with little other recourse; these mechanisms have been developed to put them into positions where official, overt society has turned against them and their legitimate or illegitimate interests, for which the globalists have already provided illegitimate ways and means to seek to fulfill them. But these illegitimate methods never last for long, and only serve to put the People individually, and then collectively, at a great disadvantage.

The proper remedy of course is to expose these methods, educate the People as to their use, and ensure that the legitimate interests of the People continue to have legitimate means to find their fulfillment. That means upholding the rights and interests of the People around you, even when they're not rights and interests you find worthwhile yourself. It's the only way to ensure we don't wake up eventually to a society in which great swaths of the People have been subverted and co-opted into enthusiastically supporting globalist agendas.

The Mattachine Society demonstrates for us how public rights efforts used to be approached using calm, reasoned arguments and appeals to fairness, back in an era when special interests weren't subverted and we still knew what we were about.

The Mattachine Society

In 1950, one of the earliest legitimate gay rights efforts was founded in the U.S.. It sought to demonstrate to the general public that homosexuality wasn't a mental disorder, that it was distinct and very different from transsexualism and transvestitism, and that gay people were ordinary, sane, respectable people who were therefore deserving of recognition of their God-given rights just as anyone else was. By simply encouraging openness, honesty, education and respectable behavior it jeopardized the ongoing covert homosexual recruiting scheme being enacted by the 'Knights of Malta'. Something had to be done, and if it wasn't done peacefully it would just create more martyrs and contribute to the cause.

The 'solution' to this was to create and establish a debased counterfeit version of the effort, and hype that instead. The term 'Pride' was chosen after one of the mortal 'sins', it was turned into a lavish revelry with increasingly self-indulgent leanings [pride without dignity merely being hubris], a colorful symbol was chosen for it which references the "Flood" in Genesis, and all manner of sexual predilections were added onto its cause including the transvestism and transsexualism that the original legitimate effort sought to distinguish itself from. Support was gained for this effort by, predictably by now, outlandish parties and revelry, and the general attitude was transitioned into something arrogant enough to provoke a division between supporters and the general public, at which time it developed a sort of in-group mentality little different than that of the equally-subverted Republicans and Democrats.

For those unfamiliar with Babylonian Gnostic symbolism, I'll simply add this in closing. Compare it against the 'Pride' and later 'trans' social efforts, and see how well you think it applies:

'Inanna-Ishtar's cultic celebrations and cultic personnel above all reflect her anomalousness and liminality. She is, one might say, externalized into unordered, carnivalesque celebration that demonstrates a reaching beyond the normal order of things and the breakdown of the norms. The goddess's festivals are institutionalized license. They celebrate and tolerate disorder. They are occasions when social rules are in abeyance and deviance from the norms is articulated. Through symbolic inversion they attack the basic categorical differences between male and female, human and animal, young and old.

The chief participants and actors in the goddess's cult are well known by name ... Their transvestism simulated the androgeny of Inanna-Ishtar. It was perhaps the inversion of the male/female binary opposition that thereby neutralized this opposition. By emulating their goddess who was both female and male, they shattered the boundary between the sexes. ... The cultic personnel of the goddess in their costumes, words, and acts had but one goal: 'to delight Ishtar's heart, give themselves up to (otherwise) for[bidden] actions.'
